

SOC 350: SOCIAL STRATIFICATION

A survey of the nature of social inequality in America, including its causes and consequences to the individual and society. Key issues include the social distribution of wealth, power and status; dimensions of inequality and their measurement; and explanations of stratification and inequality.

Course Student Learning Outcomes

1. Introduce basic social science concepts related stratification and inequality.
2. To acquaint students with the nature and distribution of inequality in our society.
3. To critically examine empirical data measuring and/or reflecting inequality.
4. To critically examine the consequences of social inequality.
5. To develop critical thinking and writing skills.

Credits: 5

Program: Sociology