

TM-BAS 470 : Tribal Management Capstone

Credits 5

Quarter Offered Spring

Allow students to integrate the knowledge and skills learned in the TM-BAS specialization program, culminating in a project that synthesizes their learning and experiences. This course will help students address a real-world problem or explore a topic of interest in depth. This course encourages critical thinking, problem-solving, and creativity. This class may include students from multiple sections.

Must be seeking a Bachelor of Applied Science in Management degree to enroll. If interested, visit pencol.edu/bas

Prerequisites

Tribal Management BAS Program Admittance; Completion of at least 40 credits of TM-BAS courses

Course Outcomes

Conduct research and analyze a real-world problem in the field to assess and propose solutions.

Develop solutions to address real-world problems.

Develop, plan, and produce a capstone project that identifies the needs of a real work context.

Present project findings to an intended audience through a format appropriate to both the audience and the project's purpose, as well as reflecting real work presentations.